CPCU SOCIETY SHOWING THE WAY FORWARD AT ITS LEADERSHIP SUMMIT

Gathering in Miami April 14–16 Will Prepare Participants to Take Charge

MALVERN, Pa., Jan. 6, 2011— The CPCU Society will once again be asserting its vital role in helping shape the future of the property and casualty insurance industry when it convenes hundreds of its members at the Doral in Miami April 14–16, 2011 for its annual Leadership Summit. The Society, the premier professional association in the industry, will be offering six different CPCU Society Center for Leadership (CFL) courses and five workshops squeezed into three days of cutting-edge training.

“Our members are proven, talented and dedicated professionals who need and deserve the best preparation for the challenges ahead,” said 2010-2011 Society President and Chairman Warren L. Farrar, CPCU, CLU, ChFC. “The Society’s Leadership Summit is unique in the quality and intensity of programs designed specifically to nurture and hone leadership talent.”

Among the courses being offered are such innovative fare as “Developing Emotional Intelligence,” “Leading with Emotional Intelligence,” and “Leading Change to Drive Success,” supplemented by workshops providing real world applications of the course material - all designed to drive the Society and its 148 chapters in reaching new heights of accomplishment. Outside the academic environment, receptions, mealtime programs and many other opportunities for networking and informal contacts will abound, making possible the forging of invaluable bonds in an atmosphere free from office pressures.

“The result,” added Farrar, “will be a reinvigorated and enthusiastic cadre of Society leaders eager to promote the CPCU designation, professional education, ethics and community service throughout the country and abroad. All of this is what makes the Leadership Summit such an exciting and outstanding event.”
